

HELD FOR EXPLOSION THAT KILLED FIFTY

Assistant Foreman of Laborers on the Alum Chine Accused of Causing Disaster.

DISPUTE SURVIVORS' TALES

Twelve of Missing Given Up as Lost and Search of Baltimore
Harbor Fails to Yield
More Bodies.

Baltimore, March 9 (Sunday).—William J. Bombard, assistant foreman of the stevedores who were loading dynamite into the Alum Chine, which was blown up yesterday, was arrested soon after midnight this morning and is held for the coroner's jury. The coroner ordered the arrest after a statement made to him by Morris Price, a stevedore. According to the coroner, Price told him that Bombard reproved several of the stevedores for working too slowly, at the same time hastily jabbing a nailhook into one of the boxes of dynamite on a shute. Immediately there was an explosion.

Baltimore, March 8.—Efforts to determine the exact number of dead and injured as a result of the explosion of 300 tons of dynamite yesterday in the hold of the British tramp steamer Alum Chine and to ascertain the cause of the explosion were only partly successful today. Seventeen bodies have been identified, two remain in the morgue unidentified, twelve among the missing have been given up as lost, and it is thought that at least ten stevedores, who were known only by numbers, lost their lives. In addition to the fifty more already ascertained to be dead. Two of the forty-three known injured probably will die. A conservative estimate of the property loss is between $500,000 and $600,000.

The fifteen survivors of the crew of the Alum Chine signed tonight a sworn statement in which they declared that the government laws regarding the loading of explosives were carried out, and that fire of unknown origin in the bow of the ship caused the explosion. The men say they saw the fire before the explosion.

All accounts, with but one exception, agree that there was but one explosion. A statement was made to-night, however, by William J. Bombard, assistant foreman of the stevedores, in which he said that a box carried by him and another stevedore exploded when they set it on the floor. After the explosion, he said, he and fourteen others scrambled out of the hold and reached the deck of the tug Atlantic.

Bombard said that when they got to the tug they saw smoke coming from the hold of the Alum Chine and that twenty minutes elapsed between the time the box exploded and the time the big explosion came.

"We had got more than one hundred yards away from the Alum Chine when she blew up," he said. "Then the Atlantic caught on fire, and we jumped overboard. I can't remember what happened after that. That is how the explosion happened. I was not careless. I was as careful as I could be."

A coroner's jury was empaneled today and will begin an inquest Monday. Steamboat Inspectors Wright and White will begin an investigation Monday, and Interstate Commerce Commission Agent Frank McManamy and Colonel Duane U. S. A., retired, who were here for a short time today, will continue their investigation. The Public Service Commission will make a thorough inquiry in behalf of the State of Maryland.

Launches and tenders worked all day with grappling hooks at the scene of the explosion, but their efforts to recover bodies were unavailing.

It was learned today that twenty-five tons of dynamite remained unexploded in one of the cars aboard the lighter, tied alongside the Alum Chine when she exploded. The harbor authorities have placed a buoy over the spot to warn passing vessels of the danger lying beneath the surface of the water.

HAD THREATENED CARNEGIE

Woman, Taken from Cathedral, Caused Scene in Hotel.

Mrs. Caroline Walsh Clinton, who attempted to enter the sanctuary in St. Patrick's Cathedral Friday night and make a gift of uncut jewels to Cardinal Farley, is still under observation in the psychiatric ward of Bellevue Hospital. It was learned yesterday she had created a scene in the Holland House Friday afternoon by demanding to be taken before Andrew Carnegie, who she asserted was awaiting her in the hotel. She was persuaded to leave the hotel, but before doing so shouted that there would be trouble in consequence, and that Mr. Carnegie would be the man to suffer most. She had been dignified and quiet during the week or more she was a patron of the hotel up to the Friday afternoon episode, the assistant manager said.

Neither Mrs. J. P. Morgan, Cesare Cetti, the banker, nor any of their representatives called upon Mrs. Clinton at Bellevue yesterday. She had declared that she was an intimate friend of both.

STOLE TO DECEIVE WIFE

Low Salary and Desire for High Life Ends in Jail.

Among the prisoners taken to Sing Sing prison by Sheriff Harburger yesterday was a neat, dapper young fellow, whose demeanor showed utter dejection. He was Eugene Leitner, a bookkeeper, who lived at No. 587 Riverside Drive. Leitner was convicted recently of stealing a check for $500 from his employer, Waymen Stoff, of No. 22 Mount Morris Park West. Although this was the only charge made, Stoff asserted that Leitner's peculations during the last six years ran well into the thousands. Leitner represented to his young wife that he was a partner with Mr. Stoff. They lived in good style and moved in a circle that spent money freely and entertained well. Mrs. Leitner is prostrated at this sudden change from the wife of a prosperous business man to that of a convict. Leitner will serve from one year to four years and six months. He is thirty-five years old.

MEDELSSOHN CLUB TO DINE.

The first annual dinner of the Medelssohn Club will be held in the Waldorf-Astoria on Friday evening at 7 o'clock. The dinner will celebrate the completion of forty years of active service in the club of Horatio J. Brewer, its president.

CHILDS'S BEQUEST TRACED

Woman Who Got Income from $15,000 Identified.

The contest over the will of Irving W. Childs, brought by his wife, Mrs. Gertrude E. Childs, has revealed the identity of the woman to whom he left the income from $15,000 and to whom he referred as "my friend who was with me in Spain." The friend, according to an affidavit by Mrs. Childs, is Miss Lydia Robinson, who lives at Chester, Kent Island, Md.

The identity of the friend of Childs had been a secret. Mrs. Childs applied to the Surrogate's Court to have Miss Robinson examined as an adverse witness in the will contest, and the court has issued a commission to have her examined.

Mrs. Childs said Miss Robinson would be able to testify to conversations between Mr. Childs and Frederick H. Clarke, executor of his will. Clarke received $5,000 in the will of Childs, and also the residuary estate, and Mrs. Childs is fighting this provision, in behalf of her daughter, because very little of the estate, valued at $300,000, is left for her daughter. Mrs. Childs said that Miss Robinson was much in the company of her husband from 1908 to 1912, and that he discussed his business affairs with her.

Childs died in the Neurological Hospital after a lurid career on Broadway, and after he had spent part of an estate valued at $1,000,000, which his father had left.

MRS. LE COMPTE HAS GUARD

Three Near Her in Court When Alleged Assailant Is Held.

Mrs. Madelon Le Compte, of No. 109 Woolsey street, Astoria, wife of Edward Le Compte, a civil engineer, appeared before Magistrate Fitch in the Hunters Point police court yesterday morning. She was accompanied by three stalwart young men as a bodyguard. She was there to press a complaint of assault against Ralph Cafiero, of No. 33 Hart street, Brooklyn, chauffeur for Dr. Siegfried Block, of No. 848 Greene avenue. Dr. Block examined Mrs. Le Compte before she was committed to a retreat recently.

Mrs. Le Compte said Cafiero came to her home on February 14 and asked her to take an automobile ride. When she refused, she said, Cafiero seized her by the arms and tried to drag her to the door. She summoned her bodyguard, who took Cafiero to the police station. In his defense Cafiero said he had been treated so nicely by Mrs. Le Compte, who gave him chocolate and cake when he went there with Dr. Block, that he went back the second time alone to thank her for her kindness. He denied he had assaulted her. Magistrate Fitch held him in $300 bail for Special Sessions.

TO REPORT PICTURE BILLS

Aldermanic Committee Will Advance
Folks and Nicoll Ordinances.

The committee on laws and legislation of the Board of Aldermen, at a meeting held yesterday afternoon, decided to report for consideration at the meeting on Tuesday, both the Folks and the Nicoll ordinances relating to moving pictures. The former, as it is to be reintroduced, deals specifically with structural matters, tending to safeguard the health and morals of those who attend the moving picture theatres.

The Nicoll ordinance provides for the censorship that Canon Chase and others have been advocating so strongly, and which, because it was tacked on to the Folks ordinance as an amendment, made it necessary for the Mayor to veto the entire measure some time ago. If both ordinances are passed now the Mayor may consider each upon its individual merits.

VANDALS USED AN AXE

Gettysburg Desecrators Believed to Have Come from Another Place.

Gettysburg, Penn., March 8.—The discovery, by careful measurements, that the butt end of an ax was used in the vandalism on the battlefield monuments last Tuesday night, and the finding of footprints about some of the memorials, were traced toward the Maryland line, were the developments in the monument desecration case to-day.

The theory is becoming more general that the person who defaced and otherwise damaged nine monuments left this section at once, and that no local resident was responsible for the vandalism.

CITY "SHAVE" TEST CASE

Courts to Settle Whether Landlord or Tenant Pays.

A complaint was filed in the County Clerk's office yesterday in an action brought in the Supreme Court to determine whether owners or tenants of property along Fifth avenue, Nassau street, 23d street and other thoroughfares are to assume the cost of "shaving" off encroachments in front of the building lines in the sidewalk widening improvements ordered by the city.

The case selected as a test is brought by the Union Trust Company, as trustee for the Peckham estate. It involves the property at the southwest corner of Fifth avenue and 23d street, held under a twenty-one year lease by Max Rubel and subject to the jewelry firm of Leblond & Co., which is defendant in the test case. Leblond & Co. pay a rent of $5,000 a year. It cost them $7,500 to remove the encroachments. They refused to pay the rent for January, February and March, amounting to $22,500, claiming to be entitled to the money expended by them in payment of the work made necessary by the city's orders and also to a reduction of rent of $10,000 a year because of the space they lost by reason of the alterations.

CAN'T HAVE A DOCTOR

Wife Gives Neglect of Child as Reason for Separation.

Frank Jones, who lived until Tuesday at No. 148 Hoo avenue, The Bronx, was arrested yesterday by Deputy Sheriff Fitzsimmons in the suit for separation which his wife, Mrs. Beale Jones, has brought against him. Mrs. Jones says her husband usually took a dagger to bed with him and that at times he would attack her with it. On one occasion he did stab her, she declares.

Jones is an electrotypist who, his wife says, earns $50 to $70 a week. Mrs. Jones says he threatened to leave the state, which caused her to obtain the order for his arrest. Justice Giekerich fixed his bail at $1,000.

Mrs. Jones also alleges that her husband refused to give her money for a doctor for their child, who has been ill almost continuously since birth. The child, now has the measles, she says. She says that at times he would attack her for the child is in a hospital, as he will not work for doctors.

WIRELESS FOR LAOKAWANNA

Railroad Plans to Keep in Touch with Moving Trains.

The Lackawanna Railroad has made arrangements to test the practicability of the wireless as a safety device and as a means of transmitting messages between stations and running trains. Two of these stations, one at Scranton, Penn., and the other at Binghamton, N. Y., have already been fitted with wireless apparatus, and several trains will soon be equipped with like machines.

The road plans first to test the wireless as a means of sending dispatches between the stations. Later it will be put aboard the trains. By means of it a conductor could notify the agent of a station he was approaching that he needed an extra car or repairs, and thus have everything in readiness upon his arrival. For the passengers' comfort it would be possible to send aboard running trains news items, stock quotations and like material. The railroad officials believe that the mechanism would be of most value as a safety device. Again, the wireless, even if it did not immediately take the place of the regular line wires, would serve as a satisfactory substitute in the event of the crippling of the telegraph system by heavy storms. If the present tests are successful the stations at Elmira, Buffalo and Hoboken will be next fitted with wireless apparatus.

HEART BALM SUIT STOPPED.

The $50,000 breach of promise suit of Mrs. Helen Aragon against Archibald J. McClure, of Albany, was discontinued yesterday in the Supreme Court. Mrs. Aragon said that McClure made his first promise to marry her in 1910 and several times thereafter repeated it.

'TUNNEL STREET' OPENED

Broadway Valley Dwellers Near Fort George in Joyous Mood.

FREE ELEVATOR RIDES, TOO

Public and Subway Officials Assert City Got Best of New Dual Deal.

The coming opening of the Panama Canal sank into complete insignificance yesterday in the minds of the members of the Washington Heights Taxpayers' Association and their Fort George Hill neighbors, for they met to celebrate the official opening of the tunnel that pierces the hill at 191st street.

The Interborough a year and a half ago built a subway station on the summit of Fort George Hill. Since then dwellers in the Broadway valley have cast weary glances at it every morning before beginning their 150-foot climb to reach the station, buffeted in winter by the blasts that howled down the hill and blistered in summer by the burning sun.

But all that is changed, for now they can enter a sheltered way and after a four-minute walk on the level reach the subway trains with never a discomforting thought of wind or sun. More than that, these "valley" people, if they do not take a train, but want to go to the stores the "hill" folk have built about the station, can take the subway company's elevators up to the surface 150 feet above without paying a cent, because that is part of the arrangement between the city and the Interborough.

The tunnel, which is built through the solid rock and faced with concrete, is 920 feet long, 12 feet wide and as many high. More than 5,000 cubic yards of solid rock were blasted out at a cost of $72,000.

The opening ceremonies began yesterday morning at 11 o'clock at Brooklyn Bridge, when, under the guidance of Frank Hedley, vice-president of the Interborough, the official party entered the special car Mincola and was whisked up to 191st street. In the party were Borough President McAneny, Chairman Edward J. McCall of the Public Service Commission, Commissioners Eustis and Williams and many thankful members of the Washington Heights Taxpayers' Association, which was responsible for getting the tunnel built.

At the station they were met by a band, which went blaring through the tunnel at the head of the procession that was formed. At the Broadway entrance Mr. McAneny declared the "street" officially open to the public. Then, with the band at its head, the procession marched back and took the subway elevators to the surface, whence the official party was escorted to a store, where luncheon was waiting. Henry Morgenthau was toastmaster and introduced Mr. McAneny as first speaker. The Borough President said the tunnel street was the first of many to be built in other sections of the city. Both he and Chairman McCall, the next speaker, declared the city had got the best of the new subway contracts in every respect.

General Manager Hedley, speaking for the Interborough, asserted the city had "stung" the companies most thoroughly in the conditions obtained.

FIGHT TO SEE THAW ALONE

Counsel Take Steps to Test New Rule at Matteawan.

[By Telegraph to The Tribune.]
Poughkeepsie, N. Y., March 8.—Ex-County Judge Seeger, William Van Name and Harry Hirschburgh, of Newburg, counsel for Harry Thaw, will next Saturday test the power of the State Prison Department in issuing an order preventing him from consulting Thaw privately in the Matteawan asylum. They obtained an order from Justice Morschauer this afternoon directing Dr. Leek, superintendent of the hospital, to show cause at Newburg on Saturday why they should not consult Thaw without the presence of a guard or other official.

The order was served upon Dr. Leek at Matteawan late this afternoon. Dr. Leek said Thaw's mother was barred from talking with him, except in the presence of a guard. It is said the hospital authorities will make a vigorous fight to maintain the rule.

SCHOOLGIRL DISAPPEARS

Charlotte F. Hope, Fifteen, Drops from Sight in Somerville.

[By Telegraph to The Tribune.]
Boston, March 8.—The police of three cities are searching for Charlotte F. Hope, a fifteen-year-old high school girl of Somerville, who has been missing for two days. No trace of her has been obtained since she started for school on Thursday morning at 11 o'clock.

Miss Hope recently came here from New Brunswick, N. J., where she had been living with her grandparents. It was at first thought she had returned there, but it was learned to-day that the young woman has not been seen by either of her grandparents. Miss Hope is 5 feet 6 inches tall, and seems much older than fifteen.

Police authorities of New York and other cities have been asked to assist in the search for the missing girl.

CANADIAN CATHEDRAL BURNS

Roman Catholic Edifice at Charlottetown, P. E. I., Destroyed by Fire.

Charlottetown, P. E. I., March 8.—St. Dunstan's Roman Catholic Cathedral, the largest church in this province, was destroyed by fire to-day. The loss is estimated at $300,000. The fire, supposed to have been started by an electric light wire behind the altar, broke out early to-day, and, fanned by a strong breeze, rapidly spread through the edifice and attacked the Bishop's palace, where it was not under control.

The church was built six years ago, and Bishop O'Leary was to have celebrated the wiping out of the debt on it at a special service on May 18.

MRS. BISHOP IN BANKRUPTCY.

Mrs. Abigail H. Bishop, of No. 22 East 64th street, filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy yesterday in the United States District Court. The petition gives liabilities of $28,351.70 and assets of $38,550. The assets include household goods, valued at $1,000; a Packard automobile, worth $1,000, claimed by James C. Bishop, her husband; wearing apparel, $250, and stock of the Orchard Spring Water Company, valued at $7,000. In the possession of her husband, Arthur Johns, of No. 60 Wall street, is counsel for Mrs. Bishop, who is suing her husband for divorce in the Supreme Court, where alimony of $30,000 has been allowed her pending the trial of the suit.

NO FOOL LIKE OLD FOOL

Happy Bachelor of 60 Falls for Nurse of 75.

IN THREE DAYS SHE'S BOSS

Bemoans His Fate to Mr.
Shields, Whose Sympathy
Results in Parole.

"All I can say, judge, is that I had no business to marry after sixty years of happy bachelorhood," was the plea made yesterday by Joseph Van Buren, a dapper little old man, who was arraigned before John A. Shields, United States Commissioner, for mailing threatening postal cards to his seventy-five-year-old bride.

"I was the happiest old fellow you ever saw until four months ago," said Mr. Van Buren, who is a chemical engineer. "I had my own comfortable bachelor's home in The Bronx, where no women bothered me. I had no thought of matrimony, and had settled down to the happy lot of an unbosomed bachelor.

"Then, one night, I was foolish enough to accept an invitation to a little evening party. They were mostly younger people, and the only one who seemed near my age was Miss Isabelle Burrows, a trained nurse. Well, I found out she was fifteen years older than I was, but she was very nice, and we had a pleasant evening together.

"Now, can you believe it, judge, that this woman just set her cap for me from that moment on? She gave me no peace, and kept after me, telling me how well it would be for both of us to get married. I told her that I was too old to marry, but she answered that it didn't matter. I told her that I had a good home, but she said that it would be better still if I had charge of it. Finally, one day, I just gave in and told her we would get married.

"She wanted an engagement ring and a wedding ring and other things, so I took $500 out of the bank and told her to get the rings she needed to become a wife in style. She got the rings, all right, and when she came back she asked me to let her keep for a while the money that was left. I consented.

"We had a two weeks' wedding trip, and then came back to set up housekeeping in my old bachelor quarters, at No. 1380 Ogden avenue, in The Bronx. This bliss lasted exactly three days.

"The third night, when I came home tired from work, I found my belongings set out in front of the house and wondered what had happened. I rang the bell, and she opened the door just a little bit.

"Go away! Take your stuff and go! You don't belong here any more!" she yelled at me.

"Now, judge, what kind of honeymoon is that? There I was, thrown out of my own house, and she kept even the money that she had wanted for only a little while. I tried to get that money, but she would not talk to me, and it was then that I wrote those postal cards."

The three postal cards, addressed to "Mrs. I. Burrows, wife of J. Van Buren," to "Mrs. Burrows, nurse," and to "Mrs. Burrows, nurse," informed Mrs. Van Buren that unless she paid back the money her husband had loaned her "the law would have to take its course."

Commissioner Shields showed great sympathy with Mr. Van Buren's hard luck and paroled him until Thursday for further examination.

ELECTRIC ZONE ENLARGED

Power System of Railroad Within Five Miles of New Haven.

[By Telegraph to The Tribune.]
New Haven, March 8.—All but five miles of the New Haven Railroad between this point and New York has been electrified, and it is expected that by midsummer the entire electric zone will be in operation.

A year ago there was a gap of thirty-five to forty miles remaining to be spanned. No wire has been strung from Stamford to West Haven, the place just reached, but it is estimated that the completion will not take more than two months.

The "cut" through this city has been electrified, and in the Cedar Hill yards plans are being made for stabilizing the electric engines. It is expected that a new power station will be built near the yards. President Mellen is on record for the statement that the road intends to push the electrification to Boston rapidly, and it is also probable that there will be an electrified line between Providence and Boston.

JURY IN ALASKA FRAUD CASE

Ballinger May Be Witness at Trial of Frost and Others.

Chicago, March 8.—A jury was obtained in United States District Judge Landis's court to-day to try Albert C. Frost and four other defendants in the Alaskan land fraud cases. U. S. Townsend, special assistant to the Attorney General, will make the opening statement in the case on Monday morning.

Richard M. Ballinger, former Secretary of the Interior, may be called as a witness. He is said to have acted in an advisory capacity to Frost and his associates in promulgating the alleged $10,000,000 Alaska coal land scheme. The defense of those on trial will be, it is said, that they were legally advised that the lands procured through stenographers and other employees as dummy entries could be taken without violation of the United States law.

MUNCIE ISLAND POPULAR

Contracts Awarded for Erection of Seventeen More Bungalows.

Muncie Island, on which extensive improvements have been made during the last year, is rapidly becoming a more attractive seashore summer resort. The opening of its new direct channel from the Great South Bay has shortened the distance to the mainland to a twenty-minute ride in the company's passenger boats, which meet the principal trains of the day from New York.

Contracts have been placed for seventeen new bungalows and semi-bungalows, and the company's architect is preparing sketches for several more, which will be constructed ready for this coming renting season.

The company's building department has recently been enlarged in order to handle the plans submitted in accordance with the special bungalow plan offer made by the company.

Maurice B. Thayer, the president of the company, has leased his own bungalow for the months of March, April and May, and present indications point to an early rental season.
